TUMULTUOUS LUAV ENDS IN TROUBLE

And the Court Is to Have a Busy Time Finding Out Who Started It.

The arrest of Bartender Gannon of the Kentucky saloon last night wound up a fight which occurred on Punch-bowl Hill Saturday night between what was briefly referred to previously as a gang of "Portuguese hoodlums" and some guests at a luau. Two entirely conflicting stories are told by Gannon and his party, who were at the luau, and the Portuguese boys, one of whose number is in the hospital with a broken head.

The injured boy, Willie Souza, is the cause of the arrest of Gannon, his brother having sworn to the warrant charging the bartender with assault.

According to Souza and his friends, their attack by Gannon was vicious and without reason, but according to Gannon he was rescuing several friends who were almost being killed by the boys. It is also claimed by one side that Souza is dangerously injured, the rock having "knocked a hole" in his forehead and broken a vein. Doctor Herbert, his attending physician, does not think the boy's condition serious enough to warrant the arrest of Gannon on any more serious charge than the one he is confronted with.

Souza's brother states that during the luau a certain woman commenced acting in a manner which Gannon believed to be too free, and he thereupon took her to a room, and, after some argument, hit her in the nose. She called for help, and one of the Portuguese boys ran to her assistance. The two men came tumbling out, still fighting, and the other Portuguese boys came to their friend's assistance. The luau immediately broke up in an uproar, and there was soon a general scrimmage in progress. In the course of this, asserts Souza, Gannon picked up a rock, which he held in his fist while fighting, and afterwards heaved it at young Souza, who dropped on the spot.

According to Gannon, who was arrested last night, the scrap was started by the Portuguese boys, who received somewhat the worst of it from the people whom they were trying to annoy. Later the boys are said to have lain in wait for the departing guests and caught two of them alone. They attacked them and soon had them beaten almost into insensibility. Gannon claims that he then ran out to their assistance and drove off the others. He admits throwing the rock. One of the men whom the boys assaulted is said to be still in bed from the injuries he received, having been kicked in the head.

The brother of the injured Portuguese boy went to Gannon last night and offered to withdraw prosecution if he would stand for the doctor bills. Gannon told him to come around today, but he refused to wait and had the man arrested.

When the Portuguese first reported the matter to Chief McDuffie he believed that there might yet be another murder or manslaughter case to be investigated. The present charge will be tried tomorrow.

OPIUM COMES HIGH AND MAN GOES DOWN

Chief of Detectives McDuffie and United States District Attorney Breckons are responsible for the downfall of one Laing Yee, who was yesterday charged twice for larceny in the second degree. The two officers are to blame to the highest degree as their acts were malicious and premeditated.

Laing Yee was arrested as a suspect in the robbery of 150 pounds of lead from Cunha alley. While he was being held on investigation it developed that he was also the thief who stole a pair of steam pans and some scales from another Chinaman. When confronted with the latter evidence he confessed to it but still denied his guilt in the lead matter.

PORTUGUESE VOTE IS GROWING RAPIDLY

HUO, August 22.—Important factors in the coming elections on this side of the Big Island will be the Portuguese and Labor party votes, each numbering about four hundred. The Labor men are claimed by the Democrats, their president being Secretary David Ewaling, the Democratic campaign manager here. Considerably more than a hundred young Portuguese have come of age within the last two years and will cast their first ballots in November. Normally they should be counted on the Republican ticket, and there is no indication of any dissatisfaction on the part of the Portuguese-American voters.
